

ABSTRACT

A spreading system and method for CDMA applications that requires fewer integer multiplications. User data is spread using real or complex integer based spreading codes of length SF to SF_{max} chips. At least one of the codes is of the form $j^n \cdot v[n]$ where $v[n]$ is a spreading code. The invention provides increased user separation using a plurality of spreading codes.